QORIA SECURES PARTNERSHIP WITH SOFTBANK TO BRING DIGITAL WELLBEING SOLUTIONS TO JAPAN

Qustodio, a division of Qoria Limited, is pleased to announce a strategic partnership with BBSS Corporation., a subsidiary of SoftBank Corp. (owned SB C&S Corp), to bring Qustodio's digital wellbeing and parental control solutions to Japanese families in early 2025.

This collaboration brings together Qustodio's global expertise in online safety—trusted by over 6 million families worldwide—with BBSS's extensive experience in providing security services and solutions in Japan. The partnership is set to address the growing demand for comprehensive digital wellbeing tools in the region, empowering parents to manage their children's online activity seamlessly and with confidence.

Strategic Alignment for Family Digital Wellbeing

Qustodio's innovative platform combines state-of-the-art AI technology with intuitive management features, delivering deep insights into online behaviour and ensuring the highest level of protection. Through this partnership, Japanese families will gain access to a powerful set of tools designed to create a safer digital environment at home.

"Partnering with BBSS allows us to bring our cutting-edge digital wellbeing solutions to Japan, a market known for its high standards of technology and security. Together, we're committed to support and empower families with the tools they need to navigate the fast moving online world safely and responsibly," said Viktorija Miliujeva, CEO of Qustodio.

BBSS, a trusted provider of software services in security, is a key player in Japan's IT landscape, leveraging its track record in the telecommunications carrier business and partnerships with global mobile carriers and resellers.

"We are excited to work with Qustodio to deliver the best-in-class parental control and digital wellbeing solutions to Japanese families. This partnership represents an important step forward in safeguarding the digital experiences of our customers," said Shinya Honda , Representative Director, President and CEO at BBSS.
