SEYMOUR WHYTE ALLIANCE WIN MAJOR SYDNEY UTILITIES CONTRACT

Leading engineering and construction group, Seymour Whyte Limited (ASX: SWL), today announced award of the $87 million contract for Sydney's Green Square Trunk Stormwater Project (Green Square) to the Drying Green Alliance.

Seymour Whyte will take a 30% share of total project value within the alliance, which comprises of Seymour Whyte, UGL Engineering, Parsons Brinkerhoff Australia, RPS Manidis Roberts, and Client Partners Sydney Water and City of Sydney.

The awarded contract is a conversion of the previously announced preferred tenderer position.

Managing Director, David McAdam said, "The Group is delivering on its strategic plan through bigger projects and better opportunities for our utilities business, Rob Carr Pty Limited (RCPL)."

"The combined capabilities between Seymour Whyte Constructions and Rob Carr positions the Group as a diversified services and infrastructure company with readily transferable expertise for large scale projects.

"Securing the Green Square project demonstrates successful strategy implementation by taking our utilities business to the next level of tendering and project delivery capability," he said.

The Green Square project involves the construction of a 2.4 kilometre stormwater drain to address flooding issues within the Green Square urban renewal area to enable future development.

"RCPL has achieved great success in delivering complex utilities projects across Australia, reinforcing the Group's leading position in micro-tunnelling and underground services solutions," he said.

Delivery of the Green Square project will begin soon, and is expected to be completed by late 2016.
