Symbio Holdings Limited Reclassified to 'Software & Services' GICS

Symbio Holdings Limited (ASX: SYM, "the Company") has received notification that it has been reclassified by S&P Dow Jones Indices and MSCI into the 'Software & Services' sector, Application Software (45103010) industry group, of the Global Industry Classification Standard (GICS). The change will be effective 1 January 2022.

Up until now, the Company was classified as a 'Telecommunications Services' company under the 'Communication Services' GICS sector, which reflected its origins as a retail service provider of broadband internet and cloud-based communications.

Symbio CEO and Co-Founder Rene Sugo commented: "Having recently announced a refreshed strategy to focus on our core activities of Software-As-A-Service (SaaS) solutions, and recently divesting our non-core direct to consumer business, the reclassification to a Software & Services GICS is external validation of the evolution of our company.

"The reclassification more accurately reflects our strategy and core focus, and allows investors to better assess and evaluate Symbio against more comparable global peers."

In November 2020, the Company's shareholders voted to change the company name from MNF (a business it no longer operates) to Symbio Holdings. Symbio has been trading under the ASX code SYM since 24 November 2021.

This announcement has been authorised for release by the Board of Directors.
