Executive Leadership Update: Appointment of Chief Operating Officer Craig Manz

Coronado Global Resources Inc. (ASX: CRN) (the Company, or Coronado) today announces an update to its executive leadership team, whereby current Chief Operating Officer (COO), Mr. Jeff Bitzer will transition to the newly established Chief Development Officer (CDO) role; and Mr. Craig Manz will join Coronado on 17 March 2025 as COO.

Mr. Bitzer has been with Coronado since 2013 and has been in the role of COO since July 2023. As CDO, he will be responsible for major capital expenditure projects, including the completion of current expansion plans, as well as global technical development functions.

Mr. Manz has more than 25 years of mining experience, most recently with Compass Minerals, having previously held roles with BHP, Vale and Anglo American across Australia, Africa and Canada. As Coronado's COO, Mr. Manz will be accountable for safety, the achievement of production goals, productivity improvements and cost efficiencies; and operational excellence and continuous improvement.

CEO Douglas Thompson commented, "This executive-level organisational change marks a pivotal moment for Coronado. Through the appointment of Craig; and the establishment of the CDO role, we continue to lay a strong foundation for the ongoing growth and success of our Company."

This announcement was authorised for release by the Disclosure Committee of Coronado Global Resources Inc.
