CVCheck and Xref Strategic Alliance Phase One Goes Live

- CVCheck's full offering successfully released into Xref platform
- Provides a best-of-breed solution for all candidate verification across ANZ
- Customer launch event combines forces of Australian HR technology success stories, Xref, CVCheck and JobAdder

CV Check Limited (ASX: CV1, CVCheck or the Company), the screening and verification company, and Xref Limited (ASX: XF1), the human resources technology company, announce the live launch of phase one in their strategic alliance.

Xref is a high-growth business in the human resources technology sector which provides automated reference checking software. The cloud-based, automated nature of its platform means it not only saves clients time and money during the recruitment process but also enables them to make smarter, more informed hiring decisions.

CVCheck is an expanding business with growing revenue streams through the provision of its background screening solutions employers, industry associations and individuals. The Company has developed a world-class online platform providing a comprehensive range of candidate verification checks across the globe.

Given the nature of these businesses a strategic alliance between the two entities creates a formidable offering that will greatly benefit each other's customers.

The successful phase one release has seen the technology teams of both companies productively collaborate to develop a seamless user interface. Clients can now request CVCheck's solutions at the click of a button from within Xref's platform, bringing an elegant end-to-end, full-service background screening solution to Xref customers for the first time. While the alliance is focused on addressing a need in the ANZ region, global Xref clients will now also benefit from the addition of CVCheck, since the platform is able to procure checks from around the world.

A customer launch event is taking place this evening. Hosted at the new JobAdder offices in Sydney, CVCheck and Xref will demonstrate the user interface from inside the platform. Having both independently partnered with JobAdder, the three companies see this as an ideal opportunity to showcase the outstanding Australian HR technology community.

Scoping and development of phase two is already underway and will focus on making Xref available from inside CVCheck's platform and through its API to all HR Information System partners.

Xref also intends to open up current integrations to offer CVCheck services to clients using Xref via its HR Information System partners, in the future.

Lee-Martin Seymour, Xref CEO said: “Over the last four years, we have established more than 20 platform integrations and numerous strategic alliances. With every new partnership that is formed, the technology stack, development team, go-to-market strategy and commercial arrangements each play a part in building a sustainable relationship that is beneficial to all parties. Developing our integration with CVCheck has been fantastic on all fronts. We’re excited to be celebrating that as we showcase the work we have done together with our clients this evening, and are honoured to have the support of mutual partner JobAdder, who will be hosting the event. Our first customers will go live shortly, and we will soon also be able to offer the benefits of the integration in both directions, with Xref becoming available via the CVCheck platform. We have a very exciting journey ahead together and we couldn’t be happier with how it’s started.”

Rod Sherwood, CVCheck CEO said: “CVCheck and Xref embrace one common attribute: delivering very high-quality customer service that is enabled by technology. As leading people risk management providers across ANZ, we build trust through the provision of verified information and checks for both employees and contractors. I’m thrilled with how our two teams have embraced collaborating to bring mutual benefit to both client bases.”
