Portfolio update

Bond markets continued to selloff in October with the sharp increase in bond yields reflecting investors adjusting to the expectation of a higher-for-longer interest rate regimes in recognition of resilient economic data and intransigent inflation print. The continued selloff in long-term bond yields, alongside the evolving crisis in the Middle East, also precipitated a widespread selloff in global equities.

Australian 10-year yields rose above 5% during the month before receding to end October 0.44% higher. Rising yields impacted the Bloomberg Ausbond Composite Bond Index which declined 1.85% during the month. While traditional fixed rate bonds extended their recent selloff, the Trust's floating rate structure mitigated the impact of rising bond yields.

The Trust's running income remains a key contributor to return with the portfolio continuing to collect a solid yield premium above the RBA cash rate. Income return was broad based, with robust contributions from non-financial corporates, diversified financials, and securitised sectors. At month end, the Trust's running income was 8.2%.

Domestic credit spreads traded in a relatively tight range during October, consolidating following an extended period of tightening. Spread widening among the Trust's domestic bank and non-financial corporate exposures detracted marginally from return. This was offset by the contribution of the Trust's allocation to securitised sectors including RMBS which tightened.

During a busy month for primary issuance, the Manager was selective in issues added to the portfolio. Primary market issuance was active throughout October and the month was notable for elevated investor demand with a number of large deals oversubscribed multiple times and spreads tightening sharply ahead of the issue date. The Trust invested in the new $1.25B tier-2 subordinated issuance from Commonwealth Bank. The Trust also added Auto ABS and RMBS issues. Securitised assets amortise over time and the Manager will add to holding in both the primary and secondary markets depending on relative value and fundamental outlook to ensure a prudent allocation to the sector.

The Manager remains focused on identifying attractively priced issues from companies or issuers with significant market share, strong balance sheets and attractively priced issues. The Manager believes that in the current deteriorating outlook for credit markets, this is crucial to managing risk and identifying sources of return across the spectrum of credit and fixed income assets. The Trust has been defensively positioned for some time while retaining the capability to add risk as the outlook for credit continues to improve.

Investment objective

To provide investors with monthly income by investing in a diversified pool of credit and fixed income assets.

Target return

To target a total return of RBA Cash Rate plus 3.25% p.a. (net of fees) through the economic cycle. This is a target only and may not be achieved.

Investment strategy

The Perpetual Credit Income Trust invests in a diversified and actively managed portfolio of credit and fixed income assets.

0% - 30%	Assets denominated in foreign currencies (which are typically hedged back to AUD)
