Dear Sir /Madam

Preferred Day Locker Management System for Top 4 Bank

TZ Limited (“TZ”, the “Company”) is pleased to announce that it has been advised that it is the specified solution for the integrated access management of employee Day Lockers to be deployed at new offices for one of Australia’s big four banks.

TZ understands that every employee will be allocated an electronic locker close to their work zone to store their personal effects. The activity based workplace philosophy will see employees share the new facilities, moving between meeting rooms, desks and casual settings depending on their projects and team zones.

This represents significant new business for TZ as the specified projects will require over 10,000 lockers to be installed and electronically managed under a fully integrated system solution. Supply is expected to commence mid-2014 and roll into early 2015 as the new offices become available.

TZ’s solution was selected as best meeting the bank’s requirements for workflow customisation, increased employee functionality and utility, and back-end integration with existing HR and Security systems.

“It’s a major coup to see TZ technology recognised as a highly valued alternative to traditional electronic locking systems” said Mark Bouris, Executive Chairman of TZ Limited. “We are in the market at the right time, where simple solenoid (electronic) locking can no longer meet the base requirements and customers are looking for more sophisticated and capable intelligent solutions. This is another example where TZ hardware and software is cost effectively bridging the gap between traditional electronic security, remote access control and third party integration”.

TZ will make appropriate announcements to the market as purchase contracts are finalised for the deployment of its hardware and software systems in support of the bank’s project fulfilment requirements.
