

Target Market Determination – Global Credit Fund

Legal disclaimer

This Target Market Determination (TMD) is required under section 994B of the Corporations Act 2001 (Cth) (the Act). The TMD is intended to assist product distributors, when they are making a decision as to whether this product is likely to meet the needs, financial situation and objectives of consumers who acquire it. It describes the target market for whom this product is likely to be appropriate, by rating a number of key attributes of consumers within the target market against the product's features. It also outlines how the product can be distributed, distributor reporting requirements and the triggers requiring a review of this TMD. It forms part of PIMCO Australia Management Limited (PIMCO)'s design and distribution arrangements for the product.

This document is not a product disclosure statement (PDS) and is not a summary of the product features or terms of the product. This document does not take into account any person's individual objectives, financial situation or needs. Persons interested in acquiring this product should carefully read the PDS for the PIMCO Australian Bond Fund before making a decision whether to buy this product.

Description of Target Market – TMD key indicators

The Consumer Attributes for which the product is likely to be appropriate have been assessed using a red/amber/green rating methodology with appropriate colour coding: One or more red ratings or three or more amber ratings for a Consumer Attribute indicates that a consumer is unlikely to be in the Target Market.

In target market	Potentially in target market	Not considered in target market

* An individual Fund may still be suitable for a consumer if it is outside of the consumer's risk/return profile where it is a satellite allocation used as part of a consumer's diversified portfolio.

Investment products and diversification

A consumer (or class of consumer) may intend to hold a product as part of a diversified portfolio (typically with an intended product use of satellite/small allocation or core component). In such circumstances, the product should be assessed against the consumer's attributes for the relevant portion of the portfolio, rather than the consumer's portfolio as a whole. For example, a consumer may seek to construct a conservative portfolio with a satellite/small allocation to growth assets. In this case, it may be likely that a product with a High or Very High risk/return profile is consistent with the consumer's objectives for that allocation notwithstanding that the risk/return profile of the consumer as a whole is Low or Medium. In making this assessment, distributors should consider all features of a product (including its key attributes).

Significant Dealings

Section 994F(6) of the Act requires distributors to notify the issuer if they become aware of a significant dealing in the product that is not consistent with the TMD. Neither the Act nor ASIC defines when a dealing is ‘significant’ and distributors have discretion to apply its ordinary meaning.

The issuer will rely on notifications of significant dealings to monitor and review the product, this TMD, and its distribution strategy, and to meet its own obligation to report significant dealings to ASIC.

Dealings outside this TMD may be significant because:

- they represent a material proportion of the overall distribution conduct carried out by the distributor in relation to the product, or
- they constitute an individual transaction which has resulted in, or will or is likely to result in, significant detriment to the consumer (or class of consumer).

In each case, the distributor should have regard to:

- the nature and risk profile of the product (which may be indicated by the product’s risk rating or withdrawal timeframes),
- the actual or potential harm to a consumer (which may be indicated by the value of the consumer’s investment, their intended product use or their ability to bear loss), and
- the nature and extent of the inconsistency of distribution with the TMD (which may be indicated by the number of red or amber ratings attributed to the consumer).

Objectively, a distributor may consider a dealing (or group of dealings) outside the TMD to be significant if:

- it constitutes more than half of the distributor’s total retail product distribution conduct in relation to the product over the reporting period,
- the consumer’s intended product use is Solution / Standalone, or
- the consumer’s intended product use is Core component and the consumer’s risk (ability to bear loss) and return profile is Low.
- For these purposes, a distributor means the legal entity that has the requirement to report a significant dealing and reporting period means the period for reporting complaints (quarterly).
