BHP awards contracts for Stage 1 of the Jansen Potash project

BHP Canada Inc (BHP) has awarded Worley a contract to fabricate pre-assembled units for the dry mill area and rail loading robot facilities of Stage 1 of the Jansen Potash project in Saskatchewan, Canada.

BHP has also awarded Worley a separate contract to execute field construction for the dry mill area of Stage 1 of the project.

Expected to come online in late 2026, Stage 1 of the project will have production capacity of 4.35 million tonnes of potash per annum, and together with Stage 2, Jansen is expected to be one of the world's largest potash mines. The project, designed with a focus on sustainability, is expected to have lower greenhouse gas emissions and lower freshwater consumption per tonne of product as compared with other potash mines in the region.

Under these contracts, Worley will use a digital model of the facilities and fabricate pre-assembled units at its Edmonton modularization yard. The pre-assembled unit strategy maximizes fabrication services at the yard, providing a safer work environment while also improving efficiency during field construction.

"We're delighted to support BHP in this world-scale mining fabrication and construction project," said Chris Ashton, Chief Executive Officer of Worley.

Authorized for release by Nuala O'Leary, Group Company Secretary.
