Change of GICS Code to Reflect Evolution of Business

Macquarie Technology Group Limited (ASX: MAQ) today announced that it has received confirmation from S&P Global that the Company will be reclassified into the Global Industry Classification Standard (GICS) “Information Technology” sector under the “Internet Services & Infrastructure” segment of the index.

The company was previously classified as “Diversified Telecom Services” but applied to move into the “Information Technology” sector to reflect the Company’s evolution as a digital infrastructure business through its success in cloud infrastructure, cyber security, data centres, and telecom.

The change will take effect from 1 August 2023, and the new GICS code will be ‘45102030 - Internet Services & Infrastructure’.

“This change is something that we signalled to stakeholders on 18 April, as part of the rationale for changing our name to Macquarie Technology Group. The “Information Technology” sector is more closely aligned with our Company today, which has fundamentally changed over the last decade to be a digital infrastructure business.” said Chief Executive David Tudehope.
