Austco Healthcare's Teknocorp Secures $1.2 Million Contract for Whittlesea Community Hospital

Austco Healthcare Limited (ASX: AHC) is pleased to announce that Teknocorp, its recently acquired subsidiary, has been awarded an AUD $1.2 million contract to deliver state-of-the-art access control and CCTV solutions for the upcoming Whittlesea Community Hospital in Victoria, Australia.

Operated by Northern Health, the Whittlesea Community Hospital will play a pivotal role in providing integrated community health and specialized services, including chronic disease management, chemotherapy, social support, and women's health. The facility will also offer after-hours care for non-emergency medical issues.

This significant contract win demonstrates the benefits of collaboration resulting from the Austco-Teknocorp merger and underscores the strategic significance of the Teknocorp acquisition in strengthening Austco Healthcare's capabilities and extending its presence in the healthcare sector.

Clayton Astles, CEO of Austco Healthcare, expressed enthusiasm about this milestone, stating, "We are thrilled to share this significant achievement, which not only validates the immediate impact of our Teknocorp acquisition but also positions us for continued growth and innovation."

The substantial contract award underscores Austco's commitment to delivering state-of-the-art technology aimed at elevating patient care, operational efficiency, and the overall healthcare experience.

The acquisition of Teknocorp has allowed Austco Healthcare to:

- Pursue and secure larger opportunities that may exceed the financial capacity of traditional resellers.
- Engage with national corporate clients operating beyond a single reseller's geographic jurisdiction.
- Concentrate on high-value solution selling, bringing innovative market solutions directly from the manufacturer.
- Establish reference sites, crucial in proposal assessments, from a broader pool.
- Provide comprehensive, fully integrated low-voltage solutions, enhancing the overall customer experience.
- Enhance the value proposition of software and software maintenance agreements.

The Whittlesea Community Hospital contract award marks a strategic advancement, further solidifying Austco Healthcare's position as a leading innovative healthcare solutions provider.

This announcement was approved for release by the board.
