In this role Andy will drive growth across US based industry verticals and contribute to the global business strategy with the Company's leadership team. Andy will initially be responsible for setting up the Company's wholly owned US subsidiary, Harvest Technology Inc.

A proven entrepreneur, Andy was co-founder and CEO of US based company RealWear Inc., who design and manufacture the HMT-1 industrial 'head-up-display' augmented reality computer. Prior to startup ventures, Andy held the position of Chief Engineer for Electronic Warfare Systems at Raytheon Technologies Corporation. Before joining Raytheon, Andy served as general manager at M/A-COM Technology Solutions, overseeing a commercial electronics product line. He is a retired Lieutenant Commander having served 25 years in the US Navy in a variety of active and reserve roles.

Andy graduated with highest Honours from the University of Illinois with a degree in Electrical and Computer Engineering, and is a popular and dynamic speaker, having been quoted in the Wall Street Journal, Forbes, Industry Week, TechCrunch, amongst other global media outlets.

"Connectivity is the life blood of digital transformation. Being able to leverage existing low bandwidth infrastructure to connect and then being able to use those slow networks to run modern data heavy applications is game changing technology. I am excited to be a part of the Company's future," said Andy Lowery.

"We are delighted to announce the appointment of Andy Lowery as our US regional lead," said Paul Guilfoyle, Group Managing Director. "Recognised as a leader in digital transformation and an authority on the application of technology globally, his extensive knowledge and experience will drive growth of our Infinity suite in the US market. We look forward to his contribution in achieving our expansion strategy into the US and the overall global business strategy."
