archTIS wins Information Security services contract with KPMG for an Australian Commonwealth National Security Agency

Highlights:

- archTIS, together with KPMG, has won a professional services contract with a Commonwealth Agency to perform a number of Information Security services.
- archTIS will provide subject matter experts to assist KPMG, up to the value of $400,000.
- archTIS is part of a consortium of industry leaders brought together by KPMG to provide this Agency with an Enterprise Information Management capability partner.

archTIS Limited (ASX:AR9), an award-winning, Canberra-based technology company focused on protecting and facilitating collaboration of sensitive and classified information, is pleased to announce that it has entered into a contractual agreement with KPMG to provide resources to conduct a number of specialised security services. archTIS will contribute resources with a focus on security architecture, information sharing, integration and cross domain services, up to the value of $400,000. The contract will commence immediately with an expected duration of approximately three months.

Daniel Lai, archTIS CEO, said:

“archTIS is very pleased to be engaged with KPMG, a leader in digital consulting, to deliver these important services for this Commonwealth National Security Agency. This demonstrates that our Partner program is delivering results as a key part of our overall go to market strategy.

It also demonstrates the regard which archTIS, and the intellectual property it has developed, is being embraced by industry leaders. There has never been a more important time to get information security right for our clients, given the amount of investment the government is injecting into secure information sharing, and the size of the threat. archTIS is proud to contribute to such an important cause as Australia’s national security.”
